

HER WOMANHOOD OF MINE

NEW POETRY BY HALEY HUTCHINSON

FROM GREEN WRITERS PRESS

FEBRUARY 10, 2026

Haley is a writer and editor based in San Francisco. Originally from the Mendocino Coast of California, Haley's creative work focuses on the relationship between body and place, and the ways space makes us. Her work has been featured in Gather, the Mendocino Women Poets Anthology, and elsewhere. Haley is a graduate of Middlebury College and the Columbia Publishing Course. She is currently the Editor-in-Chief at Write Bloody Publishing and offers freelance editing and book publicity services.

Her Womanhood of Mine is a love letter to place, a yearning for the past, and an eventual understanding of the raw grittiness of existence. This collection is chronicle of a girlhood painted by the tastes, pains, and folds of the body. Hutchinson's poems sing with the blue messiness of coming into one's self, the growing and waning of relationships, and the appreciation for simplicity. Rich with experiences both familiar and nuanced, Her Womanhood of Mine invites us to sit with ourselves, to notice, to muddle, to bloom.

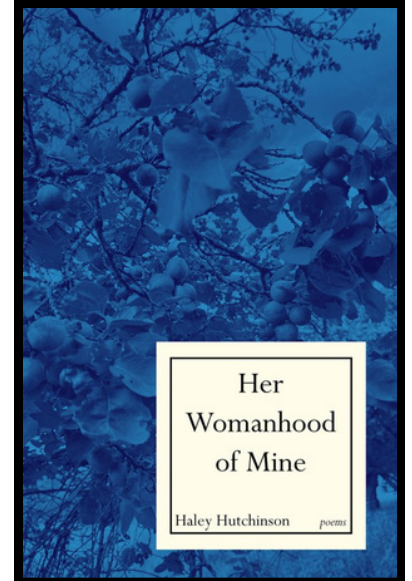

KEY SELLING POINTS

- Fresh voice on contemporary female relationships
- Offers nuanced perspective on settling into and exploring the self while practicing spatial stewardship
- Young author well-versed in poetry publishing landscape as Editor-in-Chief at renowned Write Bloody Publishing

FROM "ALL SAID AND UNDONE"

AS SEEN IN THE COLLECTION

You should know I'm done holding onto bits of doubt like pennies sunny side up, waiting to cash in my lonely.
I'm done putting in fence posts
for every exit sign of broken.
Remind me to tell you about the spots colonizing my vision, waking up on the corner of Almost, skin as aged as spud, realizing I'd forgotten to clock into the living.
